SMITH, C. J.
J. O. Latta, vs. R. S. Vickers. } Orange.

Affirmed.

Where land was sold under a decree of the court of equity and the purchase money paid in confederate money, into the office of the Clerk and Master and refused by a guardian appointed afterwards the sale will not be set aside at the instance of the ward, who was a party by his proshien amy to the petition for sale for partition. A party asking such relief must show irregularity in the proceeding or on equity in himself.

SMITH, C. J.
The Western North Carolina Railroad Company.
vs.
W. W. Rollins,

Error.

The Act of March 13th, 1879, transferring the property of the Western Division to the Western N. C. Rail Road is Constitutional.

Judgement must therefore be entered that the defendant deliver the bonds and other effects and property of the Western Division of the Western North Carolina Rail Road Company as deserved in the action and it is so ordered.

ASHE, J.
L. J. Dixon, vs. Wm. Wilson, et al. } Cleaveland.

Affirmed.

Civil action before Cox Judge, Spring term '79 Cleaveland Superior Court, for the recovery of land. Verdict for defendant—plaintiff appealed.

Whenever a natural boundary is called for in a patent or deed, the line is to terminate at it however wide of the course called for it may be, or however short or beyond the distance specified. No error.

State vs. Baxter. }

Affirmed.

Indictment for larceny—evidence tending to show the guilt or complicity of another in the commission of the imputed offence, does not disprove the criminality of the prisoner, and if received, would divert the attention of the jury from the issue on trial to another and different enquiry and thus open the door to other corroboration and rebutting testimony. Such evidence to be admissible must not only implicate another, but his guilt, as in a case of disputed identity, must be inconsistent with that of the prisoner.

Conversations and declarations of a defendant with a detective employed by the prosecutor are not to be admitted, unless such detective had been examined as a witness and then only to discredit his testimony.

The refusal to grant a new trial for matters resting in the descretion of the judge below is not reviewable in this court. An exception on an allegation of property alleging variance cannot be taken for the first time in this court.

DILLARD, J.
R. O. Burton, Adm'r., vs. W. & W. Railroad Co. } Halifax.

New trial.

This action was brought under Battle's Revisal, ch. 45, sec 122, 121, 123, to recover damages for the pecuniary injury resulting from the death of the intestate, alleged to have been caused by the negligence of the defendant.

The rule by which the estimate is to be made is decided to be "the reasonable expectation of pecuniary advantage from the continuance of the life of the deceased."

To enable the jury to fix upon the nett income which might be reasonably expected if death had not ensued, and thus get at the pecuniary worth of intestate to his family, it was competent to show the age of deceased, his prospects of life, his habits and character, his industry and skill, the means he had to facilitate his making of moneys and the business he was employed in of the various kinds.

Where the evidence was properly received, and his Honor in charging the jury, instructs them in general terms, which contain no qualification or explanation how they were to consider the evidence and to what extent they were to regard it in fixing the worth of the life of the intestate, though not excepted to, at the time it is still open for defendant to assign error for such failure, when the case comes to this court.

Where the instruction given may have left the jury under the impression that it was right to consider certain points, which may have led them to fix on some estimated annual income, which in reference to intestates life may have led to an excessive verdict, there is error; the instruction should have been so shaped as to prevent any misconception on the part of the jury, as it may have prejudiced the defendant. Venire de novo.

Stenhouse et al vs. M. L. Davis et al } Mecklenburg.

Affirmed.

The property of a principal debtor, acquired by giving the very security sought to be enforced against it, is primarily liable for the debt, and the indemnity and protection of the sureties. Where an interlocutory order issues restraining the Administrator of the principal debtor from collecting moneys due on the judgment from receiving, using or assigning his commissions, appointing a receiver to take possession of the land and collect the rents and authorizing him to advertise and sell the land in order that the proceeds may be appropriated to the debt, there is no error.

The judgment is affirmed. This will be certified that the course may proceed in the court below.

SMITH, C. J.
Gorman et als vs. Bellamy et als }

Affirmed.

The inclination of the courts is to relax the stringent rules of the common law, which allow no recovery upon a special unperformed contract itself, nor for the value of the work done, because the special, excludes an implied contract to pay.

When a party has derived any benefit from the labor done, it would be unjust to allow him to retain that without paying anything. Therefore the law implies a promise to pay such a remuneration as the benefit conferred is really worth.

Where a compliance with all the requirements of a covenant accompanying a grant or license are sufficiently alleged in the complaint, the demurrer resting on false premises must be overruled. Judgment affirmed.

JAS. M. GUDGER, vs. CLINGMAN HENLEY, } Yancey.

Affirmed

Temporary occupation of land, separated by long intervals of time, are not in law a possession sufficient, with a deed purporting to convey the estate, to vest the title and bar the entry of the legal owner. The possession, to have this effect must be continuous and interrupted for the period of seven years.

Where an exception in a grant is so indefinite as to be incapable of being located, the reservation is void and the grant remains in full force.

If there be a valid title to any portion of the exception in another person, the burden of proof is upon such person claiming title, to show the description in the exception to be sufficiently certain to avoid the objection of vagueness, by aid of the maxim, id certum est, quod certum reddi potest. The onus is upon the defendant who relies on the exception.

H. Mulholland, vs. R. W. York. } Chatham.

Affirmed.

The jury found that "The defendant bought the plaintiff's land at the execution sale under an agreement with the plaintiff that when he was reimbursed, the purchase money and interest he would reconvey the same to the plaintiff.

The defendant refused to reconvey. The plaintiff has reimbursed the defendant, and brings this suit so as to charge the lands with a trust in favor of himself.

Where a witness testifies to facts, and the evidence is not rendered incompetent because those facts were to be or are embodied also in a written official return, it is collateral matter, and not within the rule which requires the production of the writing.

A defendant is not entitled to have an additional issue submitted to the jury, when the matters of fact contained in it are substantially included in other issues, or the proposed issue involves a question of law, and not the facts upon which the law depends.

By parol agreement between a client and his attorney, a trust may be created that the attorney will buy the client's land at the execution sale, and hold it for the client, and he is entitled to recover it upon reimbursing the attorney the sum paid. Affirmed.

SMITH, C. J.
Julia Fitzgeral, et. al. vs. Isaac Allman, et. al. } Haywood.

Reversed.

The defendants (colored) applied by petition verified by oath, for a stay of proceedings, in order to remove case to circuit court of the U. S. for the Western District of N. C. and say that they cannot enforce in the Judicial Courts of this State, the rights secured to them by law on account of the fact that the plaintiffs are white persons and in whose favor is great partiality existing in this locality and there is great prejudice against them on account of their color. The order transferring the case is supposed to be sustained by Sec. 641. Rev. St. U. S.

In 16 Wall 36. Mr. Justice Millar elaborately defines the article and scope of the amendment to the constitution.

The law in this State knows no distinction among the people of the State in their civil and political rights and correspondent obligations, and none such should be recognized by those who are charged with its administration.

Where the ruling of the Court is not a mere continuance, but involves an absolute cessation of further action and denial of the right of trial affecting a substantial right claimed by the plaintiff, it must be reversed.

SMITH, C. J.
A. L. Pain et al vs. Garrison, et. al. } Madison

New trial.

Evidence—When the question is as to the inadequacy of the price paid, evidence which tended to qualify and explain the witnesses estimate of the value of the property, should be received.

A witness is not allowed to testify to what a deceased witness swore on a former trial unless he can repeat the substance of all the testimony.

The law does not require that a person should be able to make a disposition of their property "with judgment and discretion," it is sufficient if they understand what they are about.

Unless it be induced by fraudulent practices, susceptibility to undue or fraudulent influence however clearly shown will not vitiate an instrument operating inter vivos or after death.

There must be a venie de novo and it is so adjudged.

THE LINGERING STAY.

OF HOARY WINTER IN THE MAIDEN LAP OF SPRING.

Calls Forth a Few Remarks from Bill Arp, Wherein He Indulges in Reflections Suitable to the Season.

Written for the Atlanta Constitution.

Winter still lingers in the lap of spring. I dont blame the old gentleman for setting there as long as she will let him, but I wish he would make haste and go. This coquetting of youth with old age is amusing for a little while, but we can get sick of it quicker than anything in the world. I never see an old gray-headed widower making a fool of himself about a young woman but what I think of winter trying to wed the buds and blossoms of the spring. I never hear of a nice young girl marrying an old man for his money but what I think of the same thing. How his cold breath freezes on her warm lips and his thin and icy arms chills the blood that courses in her youthful veins! Such things will happen, and I cant help it; but it always makes me sad. At such times I want to be young and rich and marry her myself, just out of pity. Its so unnatural and out of season. "Oh, the snow, the butiful snow," somebody said, but it's not beautiful to me now. I'm thinking of the wheat in the boot, and the early corn, and potatoes, and the fruit crop. I never did like a north wind in the spring of the year. Its shore to bring a cold sickly rain, or a snow, or a sleet, or something. Its an ill wind that comes to us from that quarter anyhow. They never blow any thing kind or refreshing, and I reckon would freeze us to the vitals if they could.

We thought the spring had come, and the birds and the trees, and the flowers, and the turkey hens, and the little wrens that are building their nests in the porch thought so too. But its a great mistake. The carpets have been taken up a little ahead of time, and the children have had to put on their shoes and stockings again. We've done cleared up the premises once—a regular spring rejuvenation—raking and burning, and white-washing outdoors, and quicksilvering indoors. Besides it being a fit and proper time for it, we were expecting company, and so I was gently put in harness and went to work with a will. My wife wanted the front walk bordered with nice, spakely rock, and a ditch cut wide enough to fill up with rich soil all sifted fine for the flower seed. When I had finished that job she had me to white-wash the rock and sow the seed, and then she wanted two or three little circular holes dug and filled up in the same manner, and I did it so nice she wanted two or three more, and kept on wanting until she got to nine, and then she said the dog would be cavering all over them in the night, and I had to split up 144 little sticks and stake the dog out, and then she wanted enough of those beautiful wild lilies from the swamp to border a terrace, and they had to be spaded up with enough earth to keep them from knowing they had been moved. Its a good idea not to let a man know the extent of his job; when I look around the front yard and survey the amount of work that has been so quietly drawn out of me, I feel proud of my labors and amazed at my docility. It seems to me now that it's all done; everything is done; but I reckon not—I reckon not. Mrs. Arp has got some more developments stowed away in her fertile brain which will come forth in due time. She wont tax me beyond endurence. She will temper the wind to the shorn lamb. I very frequently feel like I was a lamb. But then she pays well—pays promptly, not in filthy lucre but in smiles and grateful looks—not in romantic rhapsodies or gushing torrents, but in that calm and serene glow of satisfaction which lights up her appreciative countenance and makes me feel proud to do her bidding Some folks would rather hear a woman exclaim, "Oh! my—how lovely—how beautiful—exquisite—splendid—best man in the world—come, let me kiss you, you dear old feller." I don't think I would like that. I reckon not, though, as it was never tried on me; I can't say for certain—may be I would.

Everything around and about our premises is mighty clean and nice now. I wish it would stay so. I don't care so much about it myself, but it harmonizes with Mrs. Arp and the scriptures. I'm afraid I am a little heathenish about such things, for I don't like to live under such constraint—to have to scrape my shoes so much and shut the doors and haug up my hat and empty the wash-bowl. I don't like to see the ashes taken up quite so clean and so often and so much sweeping and scrubbing. I don't think the broom ought to be set in the corner upside down nor the clean towel hid in the washstand where me and the little boys cant find it. I think I would like a room somewhere close about where me and the children could do as we please and enjoy a little dirt on the floor and throw the saw and the hammer and a few nails around and kick off our muddy shoes and mould bullets and pop corn and play horse and marbles and tumble up the bed and do as we please and clean up things about once a month. But there's no room to spare and so I have to endeavor to live like a gentleman whether I want to or not. I've got an idea that a little clean dirt is healthy. I'm afraid that little tender children are washed and bathed too much. They get puny, and pale, and delicate. Poor little things. Its very disagreeable to em. I never saw one that liked it, and thats pretty good evidence its not according to nature. Once a week is very reasonable, but this every night's business is a sin. They say it keeps the pores open, but maybe they ought ent to be kept open all the time. The surgeons say that a handful of fresh earth bound on a flesh wound or a bruise will cure it up, and I've found out that the best cure for scratches in horses feet is walking in fresh plowed ground. I never saw a healthy child that dident love to play in the dirt, and the sand, and make frog houses and mud pies. But still I don't go to extremes. I don't want em to get so dirty their skin hasent got any pores at all and their little ears would sprout turnip seed Everything must be done in reason and in season There's some things I am mighty particular about—such as clean dishes and butter and milk and sausage-meat. I saw a woman milking the other day, and she pulled the calf away by the calf's tail and then wiped off the cow's tits with the cow's tail and went to milking. I thought there was too little water and too much tail in that, though I reckon it's none of my business. Everybody has to eat their peck of dirt, they say; but I don't want mine in butter.

BILL ARP.

The Most Perfect Tenor Singer who Ever Lived?

The Parisian,

PARIS, March 12.—Fra Giovanni del Pa[illegible] Franciscan tenor of the Sistine chapel, and monk of Ara Coeli, is dead. He had been singing a great deal in all the church festas this season. At every function in the Sistine chapel, at St. Ignazio for the requiem mass of Pius IX., on all occasions, we have heard his angelic voice soaring pure and clear, limpid and sparkling, like a mountain stream thrown up into a high-water shaft, and spreading off in spray as transparent as sunny sheen against the heavens. Several times when I have heard him sing this spring, I have thought, "It is an angel and no human being."

The poor Frate was ill only a few days with a violent inflammatory gastric fever, aggravated by intestinal gangrene. Fra Giovanni was a simple kind hearted contadino. He was the son of contadini, and was born 37 years ago at St. Maria del Gludice, near Lucca. He entered the order of the Minor Osservants Franciscans when he was only 17. He was, it is said, a good student of religious philosophy and theological discipline, and at one time was a robust and effective preacher. About six or seven years ago it was discovered that he had a magnificent tenor voice of marvelous sweetness, extent, and what is unusual with that style of voice, of great strength, and it seemed incapable of fatigue. Its freshness and purity were truly unequalled. It was totally unlike other human voices. All who heard him were enchanted—only a few said it ought to me subjected to musical training. The Princess Cantacuzene Altieri, in her beautiful story, "Poverina," gives this description of Fra Giovanni's voice and its powerful effect in a church: "Then a voice arose which excited a sort of trembling in the crowd; all heads turned in the same direction; all curious and eager looks rested on the same point in the tribune. It was a tenor voice, fresh, pure, caressing, but, above all, touching and tender—one of those voices which, in spite of defects, disarm all criticism, because they make vibrate that chord of true feeling which exists in all human souls."

Fra Giovanni del Papa had many rich and tempting offers from impressarii, but he always refused them firmly. Fra Giovanni was a protege of the Altieri family; he was under the protection of the Prince, and occupied a room in the Palazzo Altieri, Rome, whenever he wished; he was as a petted child of the family. He was a gay, happy, bon enfant, with a heavy, coarse form and face; there never was such a contradiction between body and voice; it was difficult to believe they were of one being. He was most imprudent in his mode of living, never took care of his health, and ate and drank the most indigestible food and common wine at the most unreasonable hours.

[FROM THE HOUR.]

Had he not been a friar, he would have been one of the greatest operatic stars that this age has produced. As it was, he was engaged to sing in all parts of Italy, and wherever his name was announced not only was the church crowded with people, but every spot around it, in the hope of hearing some of those notes which filled the church as an ordinary voice fills a moderate-sized concert room. At one time his fame was so great that the Pope forbade him to sing anywhere but at St. Peter's But when Father Giovanni gave the intimation that he would throw off his gown and go on the stage, he was allowed to continue to do just as he pleased, and his stipend was increased. He died of typhoid fever, at the age of 37. He had grown fat of late years, so that had he joined the stage, he could hardly have taken the lovers' parts. He was a Lablache, with a tenor voice.

VICTORIA AND PRINCE ALBERT

Some Things Not Told in Sir Theodore Martin's Life of the Prince Consort.

From the Hour.

Theodore Martin has omitted some of the minor episode of domestic life of the Queen and Prince Albert, which would, perhaps, have cost him his spurs had he related them in his "Life of the Late Prince Consort." When the august pair were first married, although the match was one of love, at least on the Queens part, Her Majesty could not always control her temper, and on the occasion of one of those trifling quarrels which occur even in the best regulated families, she threw a tea cup at the Prince's head. He, excessively indignant, retired to his apartments and locked the door.

The Queen's anger having somewhat abated, the thought him his sufficiently punished, and knocked at his door. To the question, "Who's there?" she replied in imperious tones, "The Queen." Prince Albert did not answer, and she went away. By and by she thought she would try again, and to the "Who's there?" answered "Victoria." Again there was complete silence, and she again retired. With the perseverance characteristic of a woman alarmed at the trouble to come, she determined to try a third time, and in response to the "Who's there?" replied, sobbingly: "Your own loving wife." This brought Prince Albert to terms, and peace was re-established. It is said there was no more tea cup throwing in the happy family.

Yet Victoria always remained an exacting, wife, and never allowed her spouse what is bon geoisment known as a latchkey. As the Prince presided at many public dinners, it was often close to midnight before he could possibly reach Windsor, and he had accordingly always a storm to face for "keeping late hours." Finally, the Queen ordered the castle gates to be closed at 10½ p. m., and the now much monumented husband was locked out if he happened to be behind time.

Prince Albert was thoroughly stingy, and cordially disliked by the servants of the royal households He rushlessly abolished all the perquisites which, from long custom, they considered themselves entitled to. He went so far as to confiscate the money they received by disposing of the wax candles used to illuminate the hall and concert rooms. Even in the houses of the smaller gentry the servents are accustomed to refresh with cold meat and beer any of their friends or the tradesmen calling during the day. At Buckingham Palace same custom prevailed. This, however, was too much for the Price's German ideas of frugality, and he ordered the servants to be placed on board wages, so that any hospitality they wished to show their friends had to be paid for out of their own pockets. Little wonder, then, that when he died the grief in the servant's hall was not uncontrollable.

To deepen the Channel of the Mississippi.

ST. LOUIS, April 13th.—Merchants Exchange yesterday adopted resolutions endorsing a plan for deepening the channel of the Mississippi River recommended by the river improvement Commission appointed by Gout and urging the Senators and Representatives in Congress to pass upon the matter, inependent of collateral issues and to that end recommend appointment of a standing Committee on the Mississippi River improvements.

POOR IRELAND!

A PLAN TO RAISE AN ARMY FOR HER RELIEF.

The Revolutionary Movement—Philadelphia Headquarters—Millions of Money, and 100,000 Rifles

PHILADELPHIA, April, 1880—The Revolutionary movement in favor of Ireland that has just been publicly started here will be marshalled, if at all, under the red flag. The call for the convention to be held in the month of conventions has been published. I talked recently to one of the leaders, a signer of the call for the Convention, and one of a group of Irish Philadelphians who have done much to leaven the lump from which the movement starts His opening remark savored of wildness:

we intend to throw 100,000 rifles into Ireland, and put them into the hands of men trained to their use by army veterans. With such a force to can raise the flag of revolution so that it will have some chance of floating." Then he continued: "Of course the great trouble has always been a want of organization. Twenty years ago everything was divided by locality and clannishness. Men were separated from each other. Then the organization on the revolutionary basis was effected, and that idea at once reconciled all other differences. The revolutionary organization in this country has effected so far one good thing,—the escape of the Australian patriots. It took a long time, $30,000, and about 10,00 interested men before it was accomplished But here the progress stopped. In Philadelphia we are dissatisfied. The 'skirmishing fund' in the hands of the Revolutionary Committe is, it is said being spent for the election of certain men to Parliament. Now, we don't believe in this Parliamentary agitation policy, and it has alienated a great many from the Revolutionary Committee. A secret convention was held not long since to arrange these differences, but the leadres were re-elected, and instead of taking instructions from the Convention; they quietly instructed that body. The result was worse than before. Some leaders won't give any account of the money in their possession. And if this Parliamentary agitation policy is kept up, why the whole thing may tumble to pieces, and the liberation of Ireland from slavery may be post-poned for another generation. We have, therefore, determined to try and start an organization that shall have revolution for the first, last and perpetual object. The circulars we sent out went to every State in the Union, and of the 1,000 we received about 200 answers favorable to us. Some few believe in the Parliamentasy agitat in policy; others thought that present revolutionary committees were doing enough.

What do we propose to do? Well, of course, I can only speak for myself and the others who agree with me. We want to raise money—two or three millions; unless we have that much it will be of no use. We will purchase 100,000 rifles and teach 100,000 men how to use them. We will get them into Ireland in one way or another, and although the Irish are not a thoroughly patriotic race, still we count on having half a million men—one man out of every ten; one man out of every seven joined the Confederate army in the Civil War—will join us. A third of the English army is composed of Irish: one-half of this number will join us. The peasantry are hard to rouse; they are so accustomed to slavrey that they know and expect nothing else. But they will support us. One of our emissaries who returned from Ireland recently said he had never had such hard work, but the peasants took to the idea with avidity. We expect 250 delegates to our Convention. Each of these can influence ten men. This will be sufficient for a good start. There are, of course, practical difficulties in the way, but they can all be surmounted. We can employ military men to put everything in order, and, when once any success attends us, we shall have everything our way. We count most on the Irish in England, and England can't throw any great number of men into Ireland under a month. But, of course, money is needed, and a compact, aggressive organization. This we propose to supply, and at the coming Convention the means and methods will be proposed and agreed to."

The speaker was earnest, and thoroughly believed what he was stating. Unquestionably he and his fellow-thinkers will perfect so much of their scheme as is included in the starting of any new plan, however startling it may be.

The revolutionists were hardly out with their notice of intention before Archbisop Wood swept down upon them in a pastoral letter denunciatory of secret societies, directed mainly against the Ancient Order of Hibernians, yet including all others "whose spirit is equally objectionable, and whose names seems to be selected rather to conceal than to indicate the object of their association." This is intended mainly to discount the coming Convention of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, to be held here some day before June next. About 200 delegates are expected to make up the Convention of "misguided, mistaken, and perverse men," against whom the Archbishop hurls the force of the Church. M. McArdle, the Chief of the Order in Pennsylvania, says he cannot understand the animosity of the Archbishop, as the Hibernians are a peaceful organization, and possess regularly attached chaplains. The Order, however, has a stain upon it from the seal of Mollie-Maguireism, the Mollies having used the lodge rooms of the Hibernians for places of meeting, and undoubtedly they drew some recruits from that Order, it represents also, to a certain extent, Know-Nothingism in the Roman Catholic Church, to which body every member must belong The Hibernians are looked upon with disfavor by the Revolutionists, who, whoever, are inclined to tender sympathy in any opposition to the Church on the points of difference. The Convention will, of course, be held, and the ferment promises to develop to the boiling point.

WAKE FOREST, April 12th.—It has been some time since our village has had a hearing in your columns, and as the bleak winds are howling around our window and we are snugly seated by a good fire, we will give you description of our progress and circumstances.

During the present year or session there has been a great deal of hard work done and money expended. Since last September there has been spent not less than $20,000 on buildings and repairs. There are now going up several new houses which will corst much more, in fact no villa has more of the true spirit of enterprise and industry than Wake Forest.

Our people have a great desire to make the place pleasant and progressive, so that still more good families may come in and locate.

The people of the country are just finding out that College is the one to patronize, and the place to live to enjoy fine opportunities and fine Society. Memorial building is approaching completion rapidly. It has been standing nearly still for awhile, but the prospect now are very bright for its being done by Commencement, June the 9th and 10th.

The Chapel below is a very fine one of its size, being intended for prayers and church, the larger one above to be used on larger occasions.

There are four large recitation rooms on the first floor, besides the small chapel. This chapel also has a very nice and seacious Baptistry which has long been needed.

The large Chapel, is the largest audience room in the State and decends from the vestibule in the back end to the rostrum, a space of 3 ft. the rostrum being exactly as high as the floor at the opposite end. There are three large stairways entering it, so that the crowd can ascend and decend very rapidly. We are hoping to see this Chapel full to overflowing next June. The number of students is larger, I think, than at any College in the State, we have 170 and will have on catalogue about 180 or 185. Who can estimate the value of such a man as Dr. Pritchard and the worth of his influence? Who can thank him enough for what he has done for the State, and especially for Wake Forest College? He expects the number of students to reach 200 if not more next year.

We now have 7 Professes and need more. The last Senior Speakin, of the present year will come off on Friday April 23.

The Seniors are anxious for a large audience as this will be the last chance for the display of their oratory—except Commencement. And I may say it is a nice thing to hear these young men speak. They will have good speeches and we bespeak for them a large crowd and a nice time. I imagine one feels badly when he is about to end his school days—and get married.

The Commencement exercises will taken place on the 8, 9, and 10, June.

The address before the Alumni Association will be delived by Capt. T. D. Boone.

The Baccalameate sermon by Rev. Wayland Hoyt, D. D., of Brooklyn.

The Literary address to the Societies will be delivered by D. R. Wallace, M. D. L. L. D., of Waco Texas. These gentlemen are all fine speakers and those who hear them will be pleased.

ANGELO.

Russian Imperial Scandal.

Paris Correspondence New York Times.

The Crown Prince and Gen. Loris Menikoff happened to be in one of the galleries of the Winter Palace when, by a secret door in the wainscoting, the Princess D. came out of Alexander's apartment and was "slated like old boots" by the Grand Duke, who, folding his arms, told the Czarina's first Lady of Honor that "you, you alone are the cause of all the mischief; you have tired out our patience." The Princess screamed and took refuge in the Emperor's room, whence the Czar came out, a moment afterward, in a towering rage, and, walking up to his son, told him that "he was entitled to his respect if not to his affection, and that he advised him to be careful or he would prove it." Loris Melikoff endeavored to pacify the Emperor, but was silenced with a gesture from Alexander, who, taking the Princess by the hand, led her to the door and then returned to his apartment. Russian gossip, which has been very profuse in commentaries upon the great favor enjoyed by the Princess for some time, enlarges upon the consequences of this incident, generally looked upon, however, as the sympton of a definit rupture between the present and future sovereigns of all the Russias, where all hope is lost that the counsels of the moderate part will be listened to.

A New Wonder.

The telephone has been outdone, according to the Cleveland Leader, by the "Automatic Indicator," discovered by a Professor in an Ohio college. By its use it is claimed telegraphy can be accomplished without the use of connecting wires. It is said that the new thing under the sun (if not an April-fool hoax) looks like a pocket-compass. "Instead, however, of having the points of direction marked on the circle described by the end of the needle, it has the letter of the alphabet. The needle is of different metallic composition than the compass needle, and has been 'affiliated magnetically' with one or more needles of similar instruments. By the newly-discovered principle the needle of two or more instruments are brought into such relation that, when one needle is moving on its point to a certain letter on the disk, the needle of the other makes precisely the same movement and points to the same letter. To illustrate: A and B each has a properly 'affiliated' 'automatic indicator,' as this new instrument is called. A goes to San Francisco, while B remains at home. A wises to communicate with B. He takes out his indicator, and, by means of a key, moves a needle of it from one letter to the other, spelling out what he wishes to say. As fast as his needle moves from letter to letter the needle in B's instrument makes a corresponding motion. In reply B moves his needle in the same manner, and A's needle spells out the answer. In case A's instrument is in his pocket when B wishes to call him, his attention is attracted by the ringing of a delicate bell like that of a repeator-watch, which is attached to the "indicator" and rung by the needle in its effort to follow the movements of its far-off affinity in the hands of B."

The only hint that has been given as to the means by which the apparatus works is the assertion that the power of the pole over the magnetic needle has been subordinated to the will of man and made to operate the needle of the "Automatic Indicator." If all that is claimed, says the Leader, be true, the importance of this invention can scarcely be estimated. The telegraph and telephone will have been outdone and rendered almost obsolete. Every business firm will be able to communicate, by its aid, with all its correspondents and agents at will. Everybody can talk with everybody else having an "indicator" "affiliated" to the one he holds in his hand, no matter how far apart they may be. The postal system, until now the cheapest method of communication, will be underbid by the "Indicators," and only general business will remain for the telegraph to perform.

Venture Nothing—Have Nothing.

When The Louisiana State Lottery Company was incorporated by the Legislature, it gave that corporation legal rights, which, after a most searching investigation, the Postmaster-General has officially decided to respect and protect in the use of the mails and the safe delivery of all letters addressed to M. A. Dauphin, New Orleans, La., or same person at No. 319 Broadway, New York City. The next monthly distribution (the 120th) occurs on Tuesday May 11th, 1880, when $2 may win $30,000.

WASHINGTON.

YESTERDAY'S PROCEEDINGS OF THE 46TH CONGRESS.

The Tariff Bill—Geneva Bill.—The Army Appriation—Other Congressional News.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, April, 13th.—The Finance Committe this morning agreed to report favorably on Eatons Joint resolution providing for the creation of a commission of nine experts to investigate the tariff question and the committee decided to report adversely on Morrell's bill to create a commission on the alcoholic liquor traffic.

Bayard, from Committee on Finance, reported with amendments on Senate bill 900 to provide for theappointment of a commission to investigate the question of the tariff. Placed on the calendar.

Conkling presented the proceedings and resolutions of the republican association of the Seventeenth Assembly District of New York City, calling the attention to the dangerous condition of the law relating to counting of the electorial vote and asking that Congress take action thereon before the expiration of the present session. Referred to select a committee on the subject.

On motion of Butler, the joint resolution legalizing the health ordinances of the District of Columbia was taken up and passed. The Senate then resumed the consideration of the Geneva award bill, and after a long debate, in which Davis, of Ill., Hoar, Blaine, Bayard and others, participated, adjourned without action on bill.

HOUSE.

Mr. Shallenberger called attention to the fact that in a speech delivered April 5th, by Mr. Gillette, that gentleman had alluded to certain members as being Nationals when the congressional directory showed they had been elected as Republicans, Democrats or Greenback Democrats. He did not object to classification if those gentlemen did not. The House then resumed the consideration of the Army appropriation bill and was addressed by Mr. Ewing, of Ohio. Mr. Ewing showed inconsistency of Republicans in denouncing the practice of putting riders on appropriation bills and said, that in twelve years the Republican party had placed on the appropriation bills 387 political riders. The gentleman from Connecticut (Hawley) who now arraigned Democrats for this practice had himself been a member of the 43rd Congress which tacked 44 political riders on the appropriation bills, forty-four rebellions in one Congress. [Laughter.] In view of these facts the Republicans had no right to arraign Democrats on this ground. The object of the pending amendment he said, was to make the law in the United States what had been a law in Great Britain for more than 200 years. That troops should not be brought to the polls. Never had any Anglo-saxon voted in sight of bayonets. President Hayes it is said, would not use the army unlawfully; perhaps not, but if George Washington were President he should not have the power to use troops at the polls, but some other President might come after Mr. Hayes who would be so—"goody, goody." It might be a man of ordinary flesh and blood, of ambition and wilfulness. It might be General Grant, (cries on the Republican side "It will.") It was possible he said, that the Republican party might succeed in breaking down all safe guards of our liberty and handing over the Government term after term to the gentleman whom it was pleased to call (ignoring one million and a half of soldiers who did the fighting) "Savior of his Country," but whether it could or could not succeed in that, those who believed that the use of troops at the polls should not be permitted could not excuse themselves for failing to make this fight. In conclusion he declared that no matter on which side the troops might be used at elections they would be base instruments of party despot who sent them there. At the conclusion of Mr. Ewings speech an amendment relative to the use of troops at the polls was adopted by a strict party vote of 116 yeas to 95 nays. The bill was then passed yeas 118 nays 95. Another party vote except that Mr. Nichols, of Georgia, voted in the negative. The conference report upon the Census bill was then submitted and agreed to. The Indian appropriation bill and the bill amending the Internal Revenue laws were reported from the committees and referred to the Committee of the Whole. The House then took recess to 7:30 o'clock. The evening session to be for the consideration of pension bills.

Women Voting--The Author of "Little Women" Describes the Scene.

Miss Louise M. Alcott, in a letter to the Woman's Journal about the Concord (Mass.,) election, at which women voted for the first time for School Committee, thus describes the scene and reports her impressions: The Moderator (who is also the Registrar, and has most kindly and faithfully done his duty to women, in spite of his own difference of opinion) then announced that the ladies would prepare their votes and deposit them before the men did. No one objected, we were ready, and filed out in good order, dropping our votes and passing back to our seats as quickly and quietly as possible, while the assembled gentlemen watched us in solemn silence. No bolt fell on our audacious heads, no earthquake shook the town, but a pleasing surprise created a general outbreak of laughter and applause, for scarcely were we seated when Judge Hoar rose and proposed that the polls be closed. The motion was carried before the laugh subsided, and the polls were closed without a man's voting,—a perfectly fair proceeding, we thought, since we were allowed no voice on any other question. The business of the meeting went on, and the women remained to hear the discussion of ways and means, and see the officers elected with neatness and dispatch by the few who appeared to run the town pretty much as they pleased. At 5 the housewives retired to get tea for the exhausted gentlemen, some of whom certainly looked as if they would need refreshment of some sort after their labors. I was curious to observe, as the women went out, how the faces which had regarded them with disapproval, derision, or doubt when they went in, now smiled affably, while several men hoped the ladies would come again, asked how they liked it, and assured them that there had not been so orderly a meeting for years. One of the pleasant sights to my eyes was a flock of schoolboys watching with great interest their mothers, aunts and sisters who were showing them how to vote when their own emancipation-day came. Another was the spectacle of women sitting beside their husbands, who greatly enjoyed the affair, though many of them differed in opinion and had their doubts about the suffrage question. Among the new voters were the descendants of Major Buttrick, of Concord fight renown, two of Hancock and Quincy, and others whose grandfathers or great-grandfathers had been among the first settlers of the town. A goodly array of dignified and earnest women, though some of the "first families" of the historic town were conspicuous by their absence.

DAILY NEWS

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 14, 1880.

GEO. C JORDAN, Editor and Propr

THE Grant boomers claim that their chief has already secured the Southern Republican delegations to the Chicago convention. If he gets the New York, Illinois and Pennsylvania votes, where will Blaine and Sherman be? It is understood that if Grant has the slighest doubt about his nomination on the first ballot, he will not allow his name to be used at Chicago. Elihu B. Washburne is said to be the man who will step up when Grant steps down.

THE New York Times finds in the remarkable reduction of the public debt during March ($14,719,000), certain signals of danger ahead which prudent business men will heed. The reduction is chiefly due to the great increase in imports (over 50 per cent.) and to the increase (27 per cent.) in internal revenue receipts. These indicate that the country is indulging largely in luxuries from abroad, and also that it is consuming an increased amount of home-made liquors and tobacco, for these are the articles from which the chief revenue is derived. There has been no such reduction of the debt since April 1872.

OF Great Britian's 31,628,000 inhabitants, only 3,000,00 are voters. They elect a Parliament of 625 members. Of our 48,000,000 population, about 8,000,000 are voters, and they elect a House of 293 members. Suffrage might be extended 100 per cent. in the United Kingdom without reaching our approximation to Universality. It is probable that a material extension of this right will be one of the reforms of the Liberal government. There are also greater inequalities in the distribution of seats than are known on this side of te Atlantic. Hundreds in some localities have the same representation as thousands in other sections. A reform in this regard is urgently demanded

THE PENNSYLVANIA COAL STRIKE.

The strike of the miners in the Cumberland mines ended a short time since in a satisfactory adjustment with the coal companies, but the miners in the Clearfield and other bituminous coal mines in Pennsylvania are still holding out for higher wages. As they refused to come to terms the coal operators, after being without coal for several weeks, determined to fill the places of the strikers with men who were willing to go to work at the advance of twenty-five per cent. conceded by the companies a few months ago. The latter have engaged several hundred Swedish iron miners among the recent arrivals at New York to work in the coal mines and have taken measures to protect them against the strikers. The first party of Swedes went to work on Wednesday last, and as they were not molested, owing to the presence of an armed police force, a second party was sent forward on Friday, and others are are to follow. It is believed that this additional labor thrown into the mining region, being independent of the unions will have a tendency to make strikes of rare occurence at those mines where the old hands have heretofore had control of the labor.

THE COMMERCIAL BAROMETER.

Failures For First Quarter of 1880—Dun, Barlow & Co's circular for April the number of failures, with the liabilities involved, for the first three months of 1880 as compared with the aggregates for the same period in the three years proceeding. The result are rather remarkable, in so far as they are indicative of the growth of prosperity and the return of business confidence. The number of failures for the first quarter of 1880 was 1,432, liabilities $12,777,074. For the same time in 1879 the failures were 2,524, liabilities $43,112,655; in 1878, failures 3,355, liabilities $42,078,826; in 1877, failures 2,869, liabilities $54,538,070. These figures are unusually small—smaller, say Messrs. Dun, than they ever before reported in any return since the commencement of the publication of quarterly returns. The number of failures in 1860 has so far been only a little more than half as many as in the same period last year, while the liabilities were less than one-third as large. The improvement seems to be equally distributed through each of the great sections of the Country, though it is less marked in the Pacific States and Territories than elsewhere. The Western States and the agricultural sections generally give the most significant signs of reaction and recovery, the Western States showing only a little more than one-fourth as great amount of liabilities as last year, and only one tenth as much as in 1878. As Messrs, Dun remark in regard to the situation as a whole: "It is a fact full of significance that the indebtedness of failed parties in the first three months of the present year do not equal one-fourth of the sum to which they amounted in any first quarter in the last preceding six years. As time progresses, the figures relating to failures seem to indicate a steady continuance of favorable condition for the trade of the country."

A Correction.

Correspondence of the News

WILMINGTON, N. C., April 13.—The following extract of a letter from a prominent and w ll informed gentleman in Wilmington will sufficiently explain itself.

"The party who sent the private telegram to the Observer stating that the primary election in Wilmington is to be construed as adverse to Gov. Jarvis is entirely mistaken. Not one word was said at any time in regard to the Gubernatorial contest, nor did it enter at all in the canvass. It was simply a struggle between Steadman and Waddell to carry the county and has no bearing or significance outside of Wilmington. Such statements are wrong for I know that many of Stedman's friends are supporters of Jarvis." B.

The Cheapest Place in the World to Live.

San Francisco Bulletin.

"Coming down to the question of cheapness and comfort," said Mr. Bridge, "I believe that the island of St. Michael, the pearl of the Azores group, is about the best place in the World. The climate is soft and agreeable, the scenery lovely and the people noted for their simplicity and kindness. Labor is very cheap, and consequently the roads leading from the town of St. Michael are of the finest character. The streets are kept marvelously clean. The island is about 30 miles square and picturesque. One can buy five eggs for 2 cents, a chicken for 12½ cents, beef for 3 cents a pound, and hire a good hand for $7 a month. You can live well for $600 a year, handsomely on $700, and live in superb style, keeping carriage and horses, for $1000. The gardens are beautiful features of the island. In one garden there are 4000 plants of different varieties. The land is owned by a few rich people and rents very high. A quarter of an acre brings $15 a year. The peasants or laboring people go barefooted and live very economically. Probably $100 year supports a small family. The fashions in dress have not changed within a hundred years, and this applies to the best society. The women wear copakes, a garment reaching from the neck to the feet and bearing some resemblance to the "ulster" which the ladies of San Francisco wear. The head covering is called a "capilla," and is like one of the old-fashioned New England bonnets, but it is attached some way to the copake. A girl, seeing a stranger approaching, conceals her face with the capilla. The native people recognize their friends by their feet.

What a Pity

that the otherwise beautiful girl should have had such bad teeth. And all because she did not use SOZODONT. It costs so little to buy it considering the good it does, and its benefits stretch out into her future life. Poor girl!

Cuticura

REMEDISE

Have Achieved the most noted success of any Medicines of Modern Times.

Messrs. Weeks & Potter have never doubted the specific properties of Cuticura, Cuticura Resolvent and Cuticura Soap, for the speedy, permanent, and economical cure of Humors of the Blood, Skin and Scalp. They are however, astonished at their universal success; for it was to be expected that in the hands of some they would fail solely from spasmodic or ignorant use of them

They are enabled to say without fear of contradiction that no remedies ever achieved in the short space of one year the number of wonderful cures performed by the CUTICURA REMEDIES.

SALT RAHUM,

Covering the Body for Ten Years, Permanently Cured.

LAW OFFICE OF CHAS. HOUGHTON,
17 Congress Street, Boston, Feb 25, 1878.

MESSRS. WEEKS & POTTER: Gentlemen,—I feel it a duty to inform you, and through you all who are interested to know the fact, that a most disagreeable and obstinate case Salt Rheum or Eczema, which has been under my personal observation from its first appearance to the present time,—about ten (10) years,—covering the greater portion of the patient's body, and limbs with its peculiar irritating and itching scab, and to which all the known methods of treating such disease has been applied without benefit, has completely disappeared, leaving a clean and healthy skin, under a few days of profuse application of CUTICURA.

I can and do heartily advise all similarly afflicted to try the remedy which has been so effectual in this case.

Very truly yours,
CHAS. HOUGHTON.

Liver Complaint.

And Dyspepsia Treated by the Resolvent, Gains 5 1-2 pounds on One Bottle.

GENTLEMEN,—I have had Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia, with running sores on the side of my neck, for ten years. Doctors did no good. I have been spending four or eight years and it did me no good. Everything I ate disagreed me. I got reduced from 150 to 132 pounds. At last I tried the RESOLVENT and it helped me right off, and on one bottle I gained five and one-half pounds. It is doing the business, and I am going for it strong. Yours truly,

JOHN H. ROY
414 Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill., Nov. 15, 1878.

NOTE.—Cuticura is admirable assisted in cases of extreme physical weakness, or when the virus of scrofula is known to lurk in the system, by the internal use of the Cuticura Resolvent, without doubt the most powerful blood purifier and liver stimulant in the world.

Cuticura Soap is an elegant toilet and medicinal assistant to Cuticura in the treatment of all external ailments. For chapped hands, roughness and tan, sunburn, and the lesser skin troubles, it is indispensable; as a soap for the toilet, the nursery and bath it is the most elegant, refreshing, and healing before the public.

These great remedies succeed where all others heretofore in use fail because they possess new and original properties never before successfully combined in medicine.

The Cuticura Remedies are prepared by Weeks & Potter, Chemists and Druggists, Boston, and sold by all Druggists. Price of Cuticura small boxes, 50 cents; large boxes, containing two and one-half times the quantity of small $1. Resolvent, $1 per bottle. Cuticura Soap, 25 cents per cake; by mail, 30 cents; 3 cakes, 75 cents.

A Rare Chance for Investment.

Wishing to give my whole attention to the lumber trade, in which I am about to engage on a larger scale than ever before, I offer for sale on terms to suit the times the following valuable property in Cary:

I.

MY PLUG TOBACCO FACTORY, in a BRICK building 50x80 feet, 3 stories high, the lower story being two large storerooms. The Tobacco Machinery is new and has a capacity of manufacturing 1,000 lbs. per day. The factory has been worked a year, and a good beginning for a trade has been made. The building and the machinery will be sold together, or separately to suit purchasers.

II.

GRAIN MILLS,

in a 3 story brick building, 28x40 feet. Two Wheat Mills and one Corn Mill, new and complete with a capacity for grinding 100 bushels of wheat and 100 bushels of corn a day, and can compete in quality of flour with any mills in the State. The mills have had a very large local patronage during the past year. They are driven by a 60 HORSE POWER STEAM ENGINE, improved, of the make of Talbott & Sons, Richmond

Attached to the engine is also a 60 Saw COTTON GIN and power press, at a safe distance (about 100 feet) in a different lot. The engine has a brick smoke-stack 60 feet high, making the danger from fire the least possible and the rate of insurance very low.

III.

Several well built and handsome residences, with lots and gardens of about 1 acre to each dwelling. They are wooden buildings, 2 stories high, with from 5 to 7 rooms each, situated in desirable locations in the village.

Besides these, 4 one acre lots, with cottage buildings of 3 rooms.

It is great news indeed that there is at last a remedy (Warner's Safe Nervine) which will relieve all kinds of pain and give rest and sleep without injury to the system. The discoverer of this remedy is considered the most skillful nerve doctor in the world.

From Dr. S. A. Pool, Memphis, Tenn

I recommended and used with my patients Colden's Liebig's Liquid Extract of Beef and Tonic Invigorator, and I find it exceedingly beneficial in consumption, debility, weakness, febrile and nervous diseases, and a reliable nutritive tonic. Sold by WILLIAMS & HAYWOOD.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.

Rev. Sylvanus Cobb thus writes in the Boston Christian Freeman—We would by no means recommend any kind of medicine which we did not know to be good—particularly for infants. But of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup we can speak from knowledge; in our own family it has proved a blessing indeed, by giving an infant troubled with colic pains, quiet sleep, and the parents unbroken rest at night. Most parents can appreciate these blessings. Here is an article which works to perfection, and which is harmless; for the sleep which it affords the infant is perfectly natural, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button."

And during the process of teething, its value is incalculable. We have frequently heard mothers say that they would not be without it from the birth of the child till it had finished with the teething siege, on any consideration whatever. Sold by all druggists. 25 cents a bottle.

This most excellent remedy is becoming more popular with our people every day. It is one of the few medicines that improves on acquaintance—the more one knows of it, the more its virtues are appreciated. Everybody who has given it a fair trial, speak well of it. Our druggists sell large quantities of it. People are not afraid to use a medicine that they know to be efficient for their ailments, and at the same time harmless in its nature. Read what is so aptly said of it, in another column of this paper. Truth is mighty and will prevail. feb27 tf

Poverty and Distress.

That poverty which produces the greatest distress is not of the purse but of the blood. Deprived of its richness, it becomes scant and watery, a condition termed anemia in medical writings. Given this condition, and scrofulous swellings and sores, general and nervous debility, loss of flesh and appetite, weak lungs, throat diseases and consumption, are among the common results. Therefore, if you are a sufferer from thin, poor blood, do not hesitate, but employ Golden Medical Discovery which enriches the blood and radically cures those affections by striking at the root of the evil and removing the cause.

For all bronchial, throat, and lung affections, severe lingering cough, weak lungs, consumption in its early stages, asthma and kindred affections, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the soverign remedy, and has outrivaled all its competitors. It is harmless in any condition of the system, yet powerful to cure. Druggists sell it.

"LITTLE GIANT" HYDRAULIC COTTON PRESS

ITS GREAT POWER.—With it one man can press a bale of cotton of from 400 to 600 pounds in from 6 to 8 minutes' time, and do it with ease.

ITS QUICKNESS.—A man can press a bale in from 6 to 8 minutes' time, and in 1 minute after, the bale is out, the press is ready for the next.

ITS DURABILITY.—There is neither grinding or rubbing in friction its operation, as in the screw press; it is not liable to wear out for want of oil or attention.

ITS SIMPLICITY and the ease which it is operated by ordinary plantation hands; the ease and speed with with which it is put in position for receiving cotton for the next bale, after one has been turned out—the operation consisting in simply turning a cock, which allows the water to flow back to the tub or tank at the bottom or to lower blocks to sink down to its position for receiving the cotton for packing the next bale. A half barrel of water will pack many bales.

ECONOMY OF SPACE. It takes but a small amount of space for its working—8 x 10 feet being abundant room for it to work in.

ITS TOTAL INDEPENDENCE OF ALL SURROUNDING OBJECTS—requiring neither bracing nor expensive foundations, working immediatery under the floor of the gin or in the open field.

IT IS THE ONLY PRESS within our knowledge with which one man or boy can press a bale of ordinary size from 400 to 600 pounds; and it is equally adapted to steam, water or horse-power, but for ordinary plantation use we have not found any one who considered it desirable to use power, as the packing is so easily and quickly done by hand, and at so great saving of trouble and expense.

THE CONVENIENCE with which cotton can be put into the box, as there is no obstruction above or about the top of the box to interfere with the operation.

THE POWER being applied in a direct line with the resistance of the cotton packed there is but little friction, and, as a natural consequence, but little wear. We are fully satisfied that our Little Giant Press will outwear any two presses of any other kind in the market. These and many other reasons can be given why the "Little Giant" is not only the best but cheapest press on the market, and we would be glad to have you give it a trial.

Our little press can be seen at our Machinery Warehouse. Thousands
